

CASH TRANSFER PROGRAMMING

Cash Transfer Programming (CTP)

The use of cash transfers in emergencies has become an increasingly common form of humanitarian assistance. Delivering cash is now widely accepted as a far more dignified alternative to the traditional in-kind model.

honours the rights of crisis-affected households to decide how to prioritize and meet their multiple needs partnership with private-sector actors in-country

stimulation of local markets, helping speed up recovery cooperation with government, promoting ownership and linkages to resilience (social safety nets)

Global Trends: Funding Cash Transfers in Emergencies

Donors providing major funding

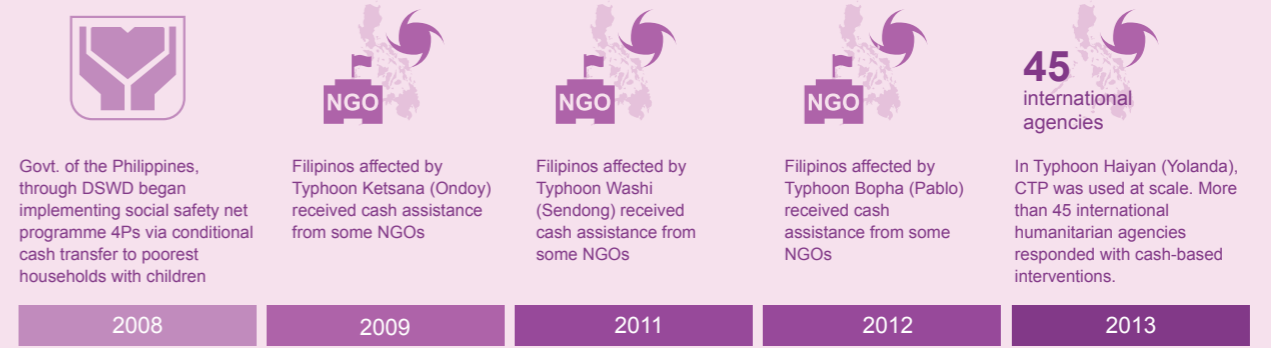

Global use of CTP to assist affected populations rapidly and at scale

Why is the Philippines uniquely conducive to cash?

Cash transfer has been a tool for humanitarian assistance and social protection in the Philippines since the year 2000.

CTP History

Country Context

What was the role of cash transfer in the Typhoon Haiyan response?

Humanitarian agencies designed cash transfer programmes to meet 3 most critical needs of disaster survivors

Types of CTP

New Strategic Partnerships

